Classical guitar performance notes:

- 1) Natural harmonics will be indicated with diamond noteheads and are notated at sounding pitch (for the score reader, an octave above concert pitch, in the manner of the rest of the guitar part)
- 2) Artificial harmonics will be indicated with diamond note heads and art. harm. written above. Artificial harmonics are written at fingered pitch and therefore sound an octave higher.
- 3) In some instances specific strings will be indicated by a number contained in a circle.
- 4) In some instances fret position will be indicated by Roman numerals.
- 5) Percussive sounds are indicated with  noteheads. A rectangle above indicates it is to be performed on the soundboard otherwise it is on the body of the guitar below the strings.
- 6) Muted notes will be indicated with x noteheads within the staff with pitch indication.
- 7) RH above a note indicates the note is to be played by the right hand in the manner of a hammer on.
- 9) T followed by a bracketed line indicates Tambora.
- 9) R followed by a bracketed line indicates rasgueado playing style.
- 10) S is used to indicate a soft tremolo style using the flesh of the fingers, thumb or hand

Shakuhachi performance notes:

1) The player should not feel restricted by the notation and should treat it as guide rather than a definitive version. In box material the player should feel particular free to interpret the music as they see fit.

2) Rests and other rhythmic indications have sometimes been removed to indicate a freedom and improvisatory manner of playing is expected from the player.

3) If no specific indication of note treatment is indicated the player should feel free to interpret this how they see fit.

4) Muraiki have been indicated using m followed by  or

5) Kazaiki has been indicated using x noteheads and the term sometimes written above.

6) Yuri have been indicated using

7) Nayashi

8) Suri

9) Korokoro: is indicated by trem between two notes.

10) Otoshi  lower pitch at the end of the sustained note.

11) Furi-kiri  lower pitch at the end of sustained note but immediately return to original note.
